APPLEDORE HOTEL AT ISLES OF SHOALS BURNED

HOTEL APPLEDORE

Hotel that Has Sheltered Many Distinguished Guests the Target of the Fire Fiend.--Assistance Sent From This City

The Appledore house at the Isles of Shoals, famous for upwards of a half century as a summer hotel, caught fire shortly after 10 o'clock this Saturday morning and was completely destroyed.

The fire is said to have caught in the bake shop and fanned by a strong east by southeast wind quickly extended to the main buildings.

The Appledore house, a large three-story wooden frame structure with its two-story annex, both nearly as large as the original house, furnished excellent material for the flames.

As soon as the fire was discovered the members of the Isles of Shoals life saving crew, under the direction of Capt. Cummings, and the other islanders rallied and did heroic work to check the progress of the fire, but to no avail.

Assistance Sent From Here.

As soon as word was received in this city of the fire, plans were at once made to send assistance. Capt. Fields of the navy yard was notified and he at once placed the government tug Pennacook at the disposal of Chief Woods. The out-of-town alarm was sounded and the members of Moses, H. Goodrich steamer No. 4, together with a large quantity of hose taken to the island. The tug Piscataqua of the Portsmouth Navigation Company was sent out to render aid.

Fire Spread Rapidly.

The summer residents at Rye North Beach had a fine view of the burning hotel and state at first huge clouds of smoke were seen ascending and this was soon followed by the entire wooden structure breaking into a mass of flames which, fanned by the strong wind, swept to the cottage of Celia Thaxter, the island poetess, which was also destroyed.

The Appledore House.

The Appledore house was built upwards of a half century ago by Thomas Laighton of this city, who, becoming disgruntled over a political contest, took up his abode at the islands where he made his home until his death. Later the house was conducted by his two sons, Oscar and Cedric Laighton, who made a name for themselves as landlords and during their long career entertained many distinguished guests at the island hotel.

About twelve years ago Oscar Laighton relinquished the management of the house and since that time it has been under various managements.

This spring a syndicate of Boston capitalists of which Charles J. Ramsdell was the treasurer, acquired the property and Mr. Graham assumed the management. The season is said to have been one of the best experienced by the hotel for many years.

The Origin and Loss.

The hotel closed last Wednesday for the season and the origin of the fire could not be definitely learned. One report was that the acetylene gas plant exploded and another was that it originated in the bake shop. The loss on the hotel and contents is said to be about $40,000. The Celia Thaxter cottage contained many mementoes of the late poetess, which if destroyed will be a great loss.

The amount of insurance on the property could not be learned.

All the Cottages Destroyed.

At 1:15 the last of the cottages at the east of the hotel were consumed and all that can be seen standing from the shore is one small cottage located between the hotel and the landing.

Hundreds of people on Salisbury, Hampton and Rye Beach watched the fire from the shore and a large number put off in motor boats to the island to render assistance.

ELECT PALMER NEW HEAD OF GRAND ARMY

Washington Is Picked for 49th Annual Encampment in 1915.

Detroit, Sept. 4.—Comrade David J. Palmer of Washington, Iowa member of the eighth and twenty-fifth Iowa regiments of the Civil war, was this afternoon elected commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic at the closing session of the forty-eighth national encampment which has been in session here a week.

Washington, D. C., was unanimously chosen for the encampment place next year.

Although there were several candidates in the race for commander-in-chief most of them withdrew at the last minute, and Mr. Palmer had no serious opposition.

Other officers elected are: Senior vice commander-in-chief, J. B. Gils, world Grand Rapids; junior vice commander-in-chief, E. W. Connors, Dallas, Texas; surgeon general, L. S. Pfeiffer, Brooklyn, N. Y.; chaplain-in-chief, Orville J. Nave, California.

After the election the inauguration of the new officers took place and several other appointive officers were filled.

A committee of past commanders was appointed today to frame a congressional bill, providing for the retention of all Civil war veterans in public employment, irrespective of their age. The resolution providing for the appointment of the committee, was received with much applause by the aged soldiers. Another resolution adopted unanimously, opposed any change in the national flag.

One death and one man said to be dying was the toll of the encampment up to tonight. A veteran who was thought to be Henry Davis of Charlotte, Mich., dropped dead on the street today and John Marshall, of Lima, Ohio, taken sick Wednesday was not expected to recover. His relatives have been notified.

CHILDREN'S FIELD DAY AT THE PLAYGROUNDS

The field day at the playgrounds postponed from last Friday, was held Thursday and was decidedly a success.

Early in the forenoon the young folks flocked to the playground carrying their lunches along, and remained all day. It is estimated that those who brought their lunches numbered fifty or over.

The afternoon was devoted to sports. As it was rather warm the boys gave up their program of sports, and contented themselves with a baseball game, which resulted in a score of 7 to 2.

The heat did not stop the girls from having their fun and so they carried out their program as planned. Many relatives and friends witnessed the events, and there was much friendly rivalry among the girls. The results were as follows:

SENIORS

High Jump—1st, Ada Hand; 2nd, Caroline Murphy; 3rd, Celia Flynn. Vaulting—1st, Ada Hand; 2nd, Mildred Adams; 3rd, Sarah Rozovsky.

Running Broad Jump—1st, Ellen Coughlin; 2nd, Ada Hand; 3rd, Mildred Adams.

Standing Broad Jump—1st, Nila Lucey; 2nd, Ellen Coughlin; 3rd, Ada Hand.

JUNIORS

Parallel Bars—1st, Alice Coughlin; 2nd, Mary Perry; 3rd, Frances Amazeen.

Race—1st, Frances Amazeen; 2nd, Catherine Heribby; 3rd, Maud Wanser. Standing Broad Jump—1st, Frances Amazeen; 2nd, Alice Coughlin; 3rd, Maud Wanser.

Running Broad Jump—1st, Mary Perry; 2nd, Elizabeth Lowe; 3rd, Frances Amazeen.

High Jump—1st, Mary Perry; 2nd, Frances Amazeen; 3rd, Catherine Heribby.

A basket ball game was played, the following team winning with a score of 20 to 8. Nora Lucey, Ellen Coughlin, Gertrude Perry, Celia Flynn and Jessie O'Leary.

There was also a very interesting game of baseball, between teams A and B, composed of girls. The score was 15 to 11. Team A—Mildred Adams, Sarah Rozovsky, Ada Hand, 1b, Caroline Murphy 2b, and Beatrice Oulton 3b. Team B—Pearl Craig, 1b, Nora Lucey, c, Ellen Coughlin 1b, Jessie O'Leary 2b, Gertrude Perry 3b.

The girls' sports were under the direction of Miss Edith Gilson and the boys under Mr. George McPheters.

Marty O'Toole, $22,500 Pitcher, Bought by Giants from Pittsburgh

O'TOOLE

New York, Sept. 5.—John J. McGraw has bought Marty O'Toole from Pittsburgh. While the price was not made public the amount is believed to be $15,000, the waiver price. Pittsburgh has asked waivers on O'Toole several times this season, a deal having been arranged for his transfer to an American Association club, but McGraw refused to waive. O'Toole was bought three years ago from the St. Paul club of the American Association, where he had made a great record. The price was said to be $22,500. He won his first game with the Pirates and since then has been ineffective. So far this year he is credited with winning one game and losing nine. O'Toole uses the spitball and his trouble has been lack of control. He has plenty of stuff on the ball but he can't make it go where he wants it to. McGraw has many double headers scheduled for the rest of the season and he needs another pitcher, and he figures that a change of location will bring O'Toole back to the form he displayed before he was brought into the big league with an amount of advertising that was a severe handicap.

DAILY SPORT LETTER

(By Frank H. Menka)

New York, Sept. 5.—At the tender age of 14, Jack Fletcher kicked a mule's tail and the inevitable happened. Wearing the imprint of the mule's rear pads Jack hastened into the family circle and displayed himself. Under such circumstances one would think that sympathy would be dolled out in large quantities. But Papa Fletcher saw to it that it wasn't. Instead of clutching his son to his bosom, meanwhile spraying ardent upon the wounded anatomy of the son, Papa Fletcher turned his weeping son over his knee and whined him on the place where most of us have been whined at one time or another in our youthful careers.

"I told you not to monkey with that mule, didn't I," said Papa Fletcher, between application with the family slippers. "But you just won't mind me, so you must suffer."

At this juncture one thing must be said in favor of Papa Fletcher. He was not a bromide. He said nothing at all to Jack about the beating hurting him more than it did Jack.

After Papa had tired himself out paddling his offspring, he ordered the offspring to bed on an empty stomach. That is, Papa forced Jack to retire to his boudoir without allowing him any food to soothe and sustain him during the long dark night.

When one has been kicked by a mule, wheeled by a parent and been sent to bed supperless one usually doesn't sleep. One just broods on what a sad cruel world this is, anyway. That's what Jack Fletcher, aged 14, did, and before the little sun came peeping in at morn through his window he had decided to beat it from home.

The next morning Jack didn't show up for breakfast. A family search of his room revealed a note, which read: "I have went." Which was true. That was about eight years ago, and that same Jack Fletcher—whatya think he's doing now? Yep, that's it—he's prize fighting. Knowing that his dad was a true foe for him to wallop, and feeling that he owed somebody a wallop for the wallpings that his mule and Papa jointly had doled out to him, Jack picked a fight with a fellow down in that dear old Pittsburgh, Pa., his first port of entry after getting aboard the once-a-day freight that pulled out of the little Ohio town where he lived in peace and comfort until the mule took unkindly to Jack's kicking.

Jack, so the story goes, had an easy time putting the blinger on the first foe he tackled, although the said foe was larger and bulkier. To make both ends meet Jack sold newspapers in Pittsburgh for a few years, meanwhile vying more fights and getting sweeter revenge each time.

One day while engaged in beating up a party, who, in all innocence had declared that "I think a mule is a mighty useful animal," an ex-prize fighter saw Fletcher. He was impressed with the way he decorated the other fellow's face. After the fight, the pug got into conversation with Fletcher.

"Whatcha doin' for a livin'?" queried the fighter.

"Sellin' papers," answered Fletcher.

"Quit it, F. J. Take you under my wing and teach you the tricks of the scorchin' game. You'll be a champion some day."

And now, two years since that time,

Ed Fritz of Newcastle, Pa., manager of Fletcher, thinks the same way.

"Since Fletcher got his first professional engagement about two years ago he has met the best boys in his class," says Fritz. "He was fought 44 times, has won 21, 13 by knockouts, and has lost only three times. These defeats were on decisions."

Fletcher is a welterweight.

BOSTON LETTER

Boston, Sept. 5.—It will be a month or six weeks before the Boston and Maine railroad can make the payments due to its trainmen according to the Arbitration Board findings, although the findings of the board have been in possession of the road, stated above for several weeks, officials of the road stated today. The large number of men involved, the many series of wages affected, and the various options open to the men make the problems of figuring the proper payments difficult, they say. By the middle of October however it is expected that the $300,000 due the trainmen will have been distributed.

Boston, Sept. 5.—Speaking of the financial situation in this country, Major Henry L. Higginson declared that the handling of gold must cease and money be put into circulation if conditions are to become anything like normal. Pointing out that we are on the eve of starting the new federal reserve banking system, he condemned the storing away of gold in the country banks, of people's pockets, when the need is for its full and free use. Institution of the new reserve bank organization now will make conditions more normal, but not materially easier, according to Major Higginson.

Boston, Sept. 5.—On Sunday, Bishop Lawrence is to conduct a special Labor Day service at St. Paul's Cathedral and wage earners and members of the unions are invited to be present. Bishop Lawrence has always taken a great interest in labor organizations and the working people. He was among the first to advocate the weekly payment of wages, and to come out strongly against child labor in his abused forms.

Boston, Sept. 5.—Rev. Edward Stuart Best, a retired preacher in the Methodist Episcopal church in London was 80 years old this week. He is the oldest living member of the New England Methodist conference. The aged clergyman is in excellent health, and spends a good part of the time working in his garden.

Boston, Sept. 5.—Louis Watson, the State Deputy of the Knights of Columbus, has called the congratulations of the members of that order in this state to the new Pope. The message reads: "His Holiness Pope Benedict XV.—Thirty Five thousand members of the Knights of Columbus in Massachusetts send their message of sincere congratulations and their pledges of underlying love and loyalty to our Holy Father, Pope Benedict XV."

Will Open on Sunday
The Unitarian church which has been closed during the month of August will re-open on Sunday for services.

A WAR SHROUDED IN MYSTERY

Present European Conflict Is Beclouded at Every Step.

(By Herbert Temple, European Manager of the International News Service.)

London, Sept. 5.—Perhaps never before in history was a great war fought with such secrecy as the great struggle now going on among England, France, Russia, Belgium, Serbia, Germany and Austria. The whole affair is being shrouded in deepest mystery and the issued befogged and beclouded at every step.

Every possible effort is being made by every government involved to keep their people and the rest of the world from getting an inkling of what is happening in the theaters of war.

Even the meagre statements issued by the French War Office, the British Press Bureau and the War Offices of Germany and Russia are so intricate and ambiguous, so involved and round-about in their wording that they convey little information.

Portions of the British public today showed a disposition to be impatient and skeptical because of the scarcity of information. They hinted that the Government was reticent because it had something to conceal. They argued that if the British expeditionary force in France was victorious, the War Office would have no hesitancy in giving out the facts. It was pointed out that when the British first worsted the Germans off Heligoland and sank some of their ships, the Press Bureau gave it out quickly enough. Hence, they said, the deep and almost unbroken official silence of the last few days bodes no good for the forces of the Allies.

In Paris conditions are no better. The French War Office gives out only short statements, and they lack positiveness of detail. The French people are clamoring more hotly than ever for the British that they be given news of what is going on at the front.

In England, the newspapers are publishing all they can get, in all the cities and towns and the rural population is as well, or as ill, informed as the people of London. But in France even the little news that the Parisians obtain is not passed on to the provinces. There are no telegrams and no newspapers in rural France.

Up-to-date—and the war has been going on about five weeks—these official bureaus of the warring nations have told the world, through the news correspondents have intercourse, but to take what is given them and some times have even that mutilated by the censors, has been told daily stories of fighting on the French frontier between the Germans and the British and French allies; and of fighting on the German frontier between the Germans, Austrians and Prussians.

First one wing and then the other is pushed back; then one wing or a center advances. After a long lull the public is informed that the Germans and allies have fought continuously for eight days and that the Germans have forced the allies to fall back "on their stronger positions."

Following this, it is given out that the Germans have left Belgium to oppose the Russians in the east, but still the fighting supposedly going on in Northern France with no advantage to either side. The accounts given out are such that the average man in the street cannot comprehend just what has been done, or what is being attempted. And none of the nations have given out details of their losses. In the fighting in Belgium and in Alsace it was admitted that both sides "lost heavily" but no figures were given out.

And so it goes. The war is being fought presumably for the people of the contending nations. The German soldier is fighting to preserve the integrity of German and to protect the interests of the German manufacturer and shipper. The same is presumably true of England, France and Russia and the other combatants. Yet the people of these countries and of the world are told, in effect, that what is being done is "none of their business."

The question in the minds of all observers of the war game now is, how long will the people of the various countries be content to be kept in the dark about what is being done by their troops, maintained by their money?

Mrs. Thomas Bailey Aldrich and son Talbot Aldrich and wife and boy, sailed from Liverpool August 29, on the White Star Liner for Montreal. Their motor car and baggage were confiscated by Belgium.

ASQUITH SAYS THAT THE GERMANS ARE BARBARIANS

London, Sept. 4.—Probably the most bitter denunciation of a hostile nation ever made by a British statesman, featured a meeting held at Guild hall today to encourage recruiting. Premier Asquith, as the chief speaker, denounced Germany as a barbarian nation and declared that not since the Thirty Years' War has civilization been so changed. No attempt was made by any of the speakers to disguise the seriousness of the situation. That men are badly wanted and all England and her colonies must accept the responsibility, was the tenor of every utterance.

The premier was applauded to the utmost as he denounced Germany and insisted that there could be no defence. He said:

"We have received only a fraction of the accounts of the countless outrages of these incalculable levels. They have exacted tribute from the unprotected, from the non-combatants after their defenders have been compelled to fall back. But there are certain outrages that stand out over all to appal the world. Chief of these is that greatest crime against civilization and culture, the worst since the Thirty Years' War, the shameless burning of irreplaceable treasures in the blind barbarian vengeance at Louvain. It was unpardonable and inexcusable. And, following on the murder of the non-combatants elsewhere in Belgium, it emphasizes the blood lust of our enemy."

"I would sooner see England blotted out of history than to have seen her remain a silent witness to this tragic triumph of force over law and freedom. That was just what Germany meant when she forced this war. That was what was behind her invasion in Belgium and her violation of Belgian neutrality. "Germany's ultimate aim is to crush the independence not only of Belgium, but of Holland and Switzerland as well. It is England's duty to crush this aggression. She must do it even though in accomplishing this task it is necessary to utilize the very last resource of the empire."

"Our Conscience Clear," continued the premier. "The highest interests of civilization are being served by our participation in this war. So far as the general situation is concerned, at the seat of war, in whatever direction we look there is abundant ground for pride and comfort. Our troops are fighting as British troops have fought, always facing the enemy and giving better in return than they receive."

Andrew Bonar Law, Conservative leader in Parliament, warmly supported Premier Asquith in his call for recruits. He declared England will furnish the men needed to crush for all time the spirit of militarism. "The German government has drawn the sword," declared the speaker, "and I hope that the accursed spirit for which the Kaiser, as the head of that government stands, will perish by the sword."

Portsmouth, N. H., Saturday, September 5, 1914.

Brush Cutting Day.

A county improvement league in a New England state has been working for some time for the general uplift of life on the farm. Meetings have been held at which able speakers have been heard, literature has been supplied, the newspapers have been provided with abundant material bearing on the subject, and in every possible way there has been spread broadcast information which should be of practical advantage to the farmers and their families.

And recently this league took a step and set an example which might be profitably followed in many parts of the country. After the harvesting of the hay and grain had been completed a day was set aside for cutting brush and weeds along the roads, and all interested in public improvements and the good appearance of their neighborhoods were invited to take part in the work. The result was a cleaning up of many stretches of road that had been so choked with brush as to leave in many places barely room enough for a team or an automobile to pass. The improvement was very noticeable and the chances are that more work of this kind will be done in that county next year, and that the movement will spread to other counties and states, as it should.

The work was purely voluntary, and was a reminder of the days when the road tax in the rural districts was worked out by the farmers instead of being paid in cash, as it is today. There was some objection when the change to the cash system was made, the farmers feeling that they could pay the tax easier in the form of labor, but the change has worked well in spite of the fact that since it was made there has been practically no volunteer work on the highways. There are many men who would not lift a shovel to prevent a washout. Having been taxed for the support of the roads, they stand back and let the authorities do it all, and they must not be too harshly criticised for so doing.

And yet a "brush cutting day" would be a good thing for the majority of rural communities. The farmers and their boys and hired men with axes, scythes and bush hooks can make a mighty change in the looks of a substantial stretch of road in a day, and where the experiment is tried it will be found worth while. "Brush cutting day" ought to become one of the important days of the year in every country district.

It will be unpleasant to have to pay the war taxes threatened at a time when the country is at peace, but the government must have funds, and when one source of revenue falls another must be found. There is even talk of taxing "soft drinks" as well as materially increasing the tax on beer. This would hit the young man who doesn't drink, but takes his girl to the soda fountain.

The Germans are said to be doing great execution with motor cars equipped with machine guns, by the use of which horrible swaths are cut through the lines of the enemy. Other motor trucks carrying huge sythes are said to be used in cutting roads through brush and barbed wire obstructions. As a woman once remarked while sailing past Coney Island in the evening and beholding the beautiful illumination, "great is the ingenuity of man."

Baltimore will on Sunday next elaborately celebrate the centennial of the writing of "The Star Spangled Banner" by Francis Scott Key of that city. It is an anniversary well worthy of celebration and the entire country will be in sympathy with the Baltimore observance.

A campmeeting preacher recently stated in one of her sermons that the present war was started by a few "cosmic fools." There will be a very general agreement with this view, though there are many who would have chosen a different adjective.

The miners of Butte, Montana, are threatening to lay the town in ashes if troops are brought in to preserve the peace and protect life and property. Thus it appears that the war spirit is not confined entirely to the Old World.

A fete was held a few days ago at the summer home of Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt at Newport, R. I., at which $40,000 was netted for the Red Cross. In addition to many foolish things the rich do some good with their money.

A Paris medical authority states that if it were not for microbes all men would be giants, physically and mentally. This evidently is a piece of information that has worked its way out of the war zone without censoring.

The stray teachers are steadily arriving home from Europe, and children who have been hoping for an extension of vacation will have to give it up and get ready for business.

Though the automobile has crowded him out of some avenues of usefulness, the horse still has his inning in the racing season and is attracting as much attention as ever on the track.

Labor Day is almost here, and there are many who realize that there is a lot of hard work in getting ready for its proper observance.

German Scouts as Human Trees In Europe's Great War Tangle.

German war strategy is exemplified in this picture. It shows observers on ladders with brushwood screens using their field glasses to detect the enemy. From a distance this ruse appears like a tree. This method is employed by the Germans in their advance into France. It is necessary that they know the exact location of the allies in their shifting positions in order to progress as rapidly toward Paris as they have.

PATRIOTIC OBSERVANCE

Supt. Morrison Issues Request

Regarding Centennial of National Hymn.

State Superintendent of Public Instruction Henry C. Morrison, has issued the following requests to school boards, superintendents and teachers:

The United States Commission of Education calls attention to the fact that the Star Spangled Banner, which is now our national hymn, was written on September 14, 1814, and suggests that a fitting celebration of the centennial anniversary of the event, would be to have the hymn sung in all the schools of the United States and its dependencies, both public and private, at noon, on September 14th of this year.

The call of Commissioner Chilton is a stirring one, and the vision which it arouses a majestic and appealing. Imagine the volume of song and wave of American patriotism which will roll on that day sweep half way around the world.

When the clock points to the hour of 12 on the Atlantic seaboard, all the schools of the eastern states, the lonely little one room schools in the mountains of New England and the South as well as the packed and crowded buildings in the great cities will break forth in this most stirring of our national songs.

One hour later as the sun reaches the meridian of central time the children of the Middle States will catch the echoes from over the Allegheny Ridge and a mighty wave of patriotic song from the Gulf to the Canadian line will roll westward.

An hour later still, and the Rocky Mountains will be echoing with the voices of children in ten thousand flag-crowned school houses.

And so the wave will pass on from hour to hour—to the Pacific coast, to the Hawaiian Islands, to Samoa and the other island possessions, until finally when our children have long been in their beds for the night the American school children of Manila and the Philippines will still be singing:

"Oh, say, can you see by the dawn's early light."

Ask all school teachers and officers and all school children in our own State of New Hampshire, at twelve o'clock, on Monday, the 14th day of September, to rise in their school-rooms and sing with a will our national hymn, "The Star Spangled Banner."

Let every schoolhouse flag in the state be flying full staff on that day and at that hour. And on that day above others, let us all, pupils and teachers alike, be thankful for a united nation, for American institutions, and for the great blessing of peace.

School officers are requested to see that all teachers within their jurisdiction are duly advised of the contents of this circular.

GETS BACK MONEY.

Former Portsmouth Minister
Aided Canadian Government.

Rev. J. H. Robbins, a former minister of the Methodist Episcopal church of this city, now of Concord, is the recipient of $100 as back pay for services rendered the Canadian government in the year 1897.

That was the time it will be remembered of the Fenian scare, when Canada anticipated raids from across the American border by Irish sympathizers. Volunteers were called for and Rev. Mr. Robbins, then just approaching his majority, his father, one brother, and the "hippy man," answered the call. The youngest brother remained at home.

By recent vote of the Canadian Parliament the services then rendered are now recompensed and Rev. Mr. Robbins, though now an American citizen gets his share.

PLAYING AT CONCORD.

Manager Bill Woods and his team, the P. A. C's, champions of the Sunset League, accompanied by a large crowd of rooters, left this city this morning at ten o'clock by automobile for Concord, where they will play the return game with the Haymakers.

Their friends in this city, although unable to attend, wish them a most flattering victory.

There never were such opportunities for advertisers as now. People's wants are none the less and none the less insistent because of the war. And on account of fluctuating prices they are going to shop with more care. They are going to scan advertisements more closely than ever and the first place they are going to look for it is in the daily newspaper.

ENGLAND'S CIVILIAN HEAD OF THE NAVY

Winston Spencer Churchill
Has an Envyable Record.

London, Sept. 5.—Out of the great war, should Great Britain win out, may come a new Prime Minister, Winston Spencer Churchill, First Lord of the British Admiralty is ambitious to head the Government. If England's navy is victorious over the Germans in this war, Churchill might well become a popular hero, the last hope needed to lift him over the barrier and into the Prime Ministry.

When the British fleet moved into battle the other day, and sunk several German fighting craft on Heligoland, its efficiency was the expression of a very real American contribution to Great Britain. For it has been re-created and perfected into its present shape by a man of genius whose blood is as American as it is English.

Winston Spencer Churchill is the son of Jennie Jerome, of New York, who first married Lord Randolph Churchill and subsequently married and then divorced George Cornwallis West. There have been many American brides in the family of the Dukes of Marlborough to whom the Churchills are related. Not the least of these in beauty and brains is Winston Churchill's mother. She created a veritable sensation with her good looks and personal charm. Immediately she took a premier place in society, which unfortunately her second marriage and its disasters did not maintain. But she did much to advance the political prestige of Lord Randolph Churchill and her work then has borne fruit in the achievements of her son.

Only forty years old, Winston Spencer Churchill already has an enviable record, equalled by that of few Englishmen. He has been through five wars, written seven books and now, still young is a political leader and at the head of the British navy in time of war, which circumstances ought to enable him to obtain any political preferment on which he may set his mind, provided the English forces are successful.

It is a singular coincidence that the two men now at the head of the British War Office and Admiralty were once bitter enemies in the Sudan. Lord Kitchener of Khartoum, Secretary of State for War incurred the disapproval of Winston Churchill when the younger man was a war correspondent. Churchill wrote such a bitter criticism of Kitchener for the Graphic, because the commander razed a certain tomb, that the matter was taken up in the House of Commons. Kitchener for years did not forgive Churchill, but now that they are in such co-related responsible positions and Churchill has laid down the pen, Kitchener probably has buried the hatchet.

The key to Churchill's character is that he is a soldier. He is a natural-born fighting man. He is a true Churchill, very different from his cousin the present Duke of Marlborough, whose heir to the dukedom he was until the birth of the two sons to the present Duchess still remembered as Consuelo Vanderbilt of New York.

Aside from their ancient antipathy, it is a strange thing that Kitchener should be in the War Office and Churchill in the Admiralty at a time when England is at war. It is curious because England was far more likely to have had a lawyer presiding over the army and a professor at the head of the navy department. For England was never ready with her fighting machines at the beginning of a war in all her history.

She would always prefer to blunder through than to plan ahead. But this time both her army and her fleet were ready, both under the direction of the best fighting men in the empire.

Churchill has been at the Admiralty for about three and a half years, and the other day his old enemy, Admiral Lord Charles Beresford walked across the floor of the House of Commons and shook hands with him, saying he was proud of Churchill's work and wanted their feud dead. The Churchill-Beresford quarrel was a long one, growing out of differences over naval policies. It waxed bitter because Churchill always got the better of Beresford on the floor of the Commons, thereby getting Beresford laughed at.

During his long quarrel with Beresford, himself a picturesque fighting figure Lord Charles and he had many an assault in debate, but it was on occasion early this year that caused Beresford to retire, a very battered wreck. Among other things, Churchill said:

"The noble Lord is one of those figures of whom it might be said that when he rises to speak, he doesn't know what he is going to say, while he is speaking he does not know what he is saying, and when he sits down he does not know what he has said."

CURRENT OPINION

Single Abatement of War's Horror Is That It Can't Last Long.

I believe the time has come for kings to take stock, as it were, and for kingcraft to come to a showdown. When the battle clouds lift and the earth has received the slain we shall behold another Europe. Let us live and hope. But we shall have to wait and see.

The Kaiser is held justly accountable for the bloody work that is going forward. The old man in Vienna and the ruler in St. Petersburg could each have been held to his place except for the war lord of Berlin. If he could win we should behold the rise of a power in the heart of Europe quite equal to that contemplated by the first Napoleon. That is not to be thought of or endured. The world can settle with autocracy in the Russian empire when it has vanquished autocracy in the German empire.

The world has a long way to travel before it reaches the Mount of Olives. We build a house of cards in the low country. Comes a wind across the North Sea to blow it down; comes a blast from the hell the Hapsburgs made and not a stone remains. Truly the home of Tragedy! Was it not enough that self slaughter and the assassin had done to work the devil's will on the Danube that an old man should be left to end the drama with a conspiracy sweeping across the Rhine to the Rhone and the Seine to the Severn and the Clyde? What is Serbia to England, what to France, that they should bleed for her? And after all is over, how shall the balance of power stand?

It is but a gamble—a gamble in the lives of men, the hearts of women and children. "It will be the bloodiest of wars," says General Nelson A. Miles, a commanding authority, "and the last." That is to say, it will be so destructive that there can never be another. The single abatement of horror is that it cannot be of long duration.—By Colonel Henry Waterson, Editor Louisville Courier-Journal.

although nominally only a correspondent. During the Boer war he fought when an armored train was captured, leading a forlorn hope again and again after all the officers were killed, until at last some one without authority hoisted the white flag. He was captured by the Boers but escaped in remarkable fashion to take his chances in a hostile country of reaching the British troops. He succeeded and fought again, although there was a price on his head for recapture, and a firing squad for his punishment.

He has always struggled since the beginning of his career, as he is a man who has raised, in his march to success, a very full crop of enemies. When he began his career in the army he was so hated that practically he had to resign. The fact was that he knew too much for his brother officer to appreciate and had the habit while only a junior subaltern of telling everybody, from the Colonel down, how things in the regiment should be run. For this his associates dubbed him that "Blenheim pup." He has never been popular personally, by reason of his uncertain temper and his austere superior bearing toward his fellows when in close contact with them. That has perhaps created the impression that he will never be Prime Minister. But of late he has softened and mellowed and has begun to make friends. It requires no broad stretch of the imagination to see that the war crisis may give him that opportunity to become a popular idol that will win over those who have opposed his advancement.

A letter in his pocket was addressed to Mrs. Henry C. Holt, Box 112, Epping, N. H. It is said that the letter told Mrs. Holt that the writer was discouraged for the reasons given above.

The man was taken to the Relief Hospitals whose surgeons said he was hurt internally. That he should have a spark of life left after an eight story plunge was considered remarkable.

Holt is 55 years old and occupied an eighth floor room at No. 19. He has five children.

OBITUARY.

Frederick Berry

Word was received here today of the death of Frederick Berry, formerly chief at the Elks Home, at the Marine hospital at New York city.

About a year ago he moved to Jacksonville, Fla., and was on a pleasure trip to New York when taken sick. While in this city Mr. Berry made many friends by his uniform courtesy, and his death will be deeply regretted by many. He leaves a wife, also a mother and sister. He will be buried at Beaufort, S. C., on Sunday.

RED CROSS MEETING.

A public meeting will be held in the interests of the Red Cross in the Unitarian Chapel on Court street, Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, to arrange for the making of hospital garments and bandages. All who are willing to help in this important work are cordially invited and urged to be present.

TO ENGAGE IN BUSINESS.

Elissa B. Newman, who in former years conducted a painting and paper hanging business in this city will soon re-enter that business and will be located at 10 Bow street, where he will be pleased to serve his many friends and patrons of former years.

EXTENSION OF PRACTICAL ARTS STUDIES IN HIGH SCHOOLS AND ACADEMIES.

A list of high schools and academies approved by the department of public instruction, has been completed for the school year of 1914-15. The courses of study for the ensuing year show a remarkable increase in the number of schools offering complete approved courses in the practical arts. Probably no educational movement in the history of the state has grown so rapidly as this.

During the next school year fifty eight high schools and academies out of a total of about 90 will be given some kind of approved practical arts work. Of these, 20 schools will be teaching agriculture; 40, domestic arts; 30, commerce; and 7, mechanic arts. The corresponding figures for the last school year are: agriculture, 15 schools; domestic arts, 22; commerce, 34; and mechanic arts, 4.

In the cases of the following schools a relatively complete adjustment to community needs have been made: Berlin, Colby Academy, Colebrook, Concord, Dover, Keene, Kimball Union Academy, Lebanon, Nashua, Plakerton Academy, Prouty Academy, Warner, Whitefield.

LETTER FROM WAR ZONE

Jeff Miller Writes From Amsterdam to His Old Friend, Tom Leckey.

This morning Thomas C. Leckey received a letter from Jeff C. Miller, who was his guest in 1913 and is well known to many of our citizens. The letter is dated Amsterdam, Aug. 26, and is as follows:

Hotel de l'Europe
Amsterdam, Aug. 26, 1914.

My Dear Tom:

An attempt to give you a pen picture of our varied experiences and hardships during the past month would be quite difficult, but I shall endeavor to relate in part our trials (which were many) during the long days we were isolated within a conserved zone of only a few miles in area and shut out, in fact, from all the world.

I have written you on several occasions and sent post cards from Carlsbad, but fear military censor has prevented the forwarding of all mail for points outside of Austria or Germany.

As related in my previous communications, "War" was one subject that seriously never entered my head.

We entered on the evening of the 27th of thinking "Peace" was the one thing beloved by the whole world, but to my amazement the call to arms by the Austrians at 5 o'clock the following morning was undisturbed evidence that Franz Joseph was determined to force an issue which has now practically involved all of the civilized nations of the earth. I witnessed the mobilization of thousands of troops and all within such a short time where hundreds of thousands had to leave their homes, business, friends and all to take up arms in defence of their country. Eight thousand people in the little city of Carlsbad responded to the first call, depositing our hotel, our proprietors, coaches, waiters, down to the grown-up elevator boy and within ten hours were enroute for the front, a military station some 20 miles distant, where in 48 hours 67,000 men from our immediate section stood at arms.

Then came our trials. First, cancellation of train service; then censorship of mail, telegrams, cable and newspapers. Not a word could we send or receive and no means of communication were left us other than mental telegraphy and we were thus medium to a tangle. After enduring this for 22 long days I started out with Mrs. Miller and four American women who appealed to me to act as guide and God Father, for all, and how thankful, dear Tom, that my duty has been fulfilled, finally landing them all in Holland.

We were eight days en route from Carlsbad to Amsterdam, a distance usually covered by train service in 19 hours. The first day from 6 a. m. until 11 p. m., we made only 70 miles; on the second day, then gradually got down near Aysig, on the River Elbe, where Mrs. Miller was arrested as an English spy, requiring passports and a bundle of American diplomacy and energy to get her out of the clutches of the soldiers. We had three other ladies of my party arrested for the same cause but fortunately I was armed with necessary papers and had them released. We slept three long nights in one single compartment on improvised beds I made from leather cushions and we all were forced to go along on such food that I could gather, at prices 400 per cent. advance over ordinary market value. I had American $4 gold pieces turned down at Hadenbach, on the Austrian-German frontier. In other words, worthless copper had more value than those beautiful American pieces of mine upon which were stamped and engraved "In God We Trust." Strange, but true. They were mad. The world is upset and they had no faith or confidence in anything other than Austria and would not give or sell anything only for money of their own. I saw large crowds of people gather around a restaurant, forcing their way in and around the counter down into the kitchen and take every morsel of food and drink in sight. But believe me, my dear boy, beer was plentiful and I filled up on a stick quite often when we were shy on and light on substantial.

This is something new as you well know, as one or two glasses of the beverage a year is my limit. In other words, I have been quite guilty of late, rushing the growler, but made so to quench thirst and hunger and paying for such luxuries with money I had to discount on basis of $20 for every $100.

We are now here resting, preparatory to going to England, but we are all thankful for being here in this peaceful country. However we feel that we must not tarry too long as the germ of war is spreading and I fear the little Dutch country will be forced to fight or else find the force of her buildings. We hope to leave via England, Liverpool and the Channel line to Boston and sincerely trust nothing will interfere to prevent us going. Holland is now mobilizing and has 150,000 under arms. We saw hundreds of thousands of Austrians and Germans drilling and dividing into companies and regiments and we saw at the same time fountains of tears streaming down the cheeks of mothers, wives, children and sweethearts when their loved ones were torn from home and their friends.

We witnessed at Aysig in Holland, near the frontier, a thousands of men marching into the city from the fields, where they had been gathering their harvest, all accompanied by their wives, little children and babes in arms, filling the air with distressing sob, which was heart rendering and they clinging to those that would soon be torn away from them. Many of whom would probably never return.

Thousands of things have transpired so appropiate to our everyday life and experience, but the horrors are so deeply stamped upon my memory that I hardly know where to begin or what to picture first in my attempt in giving you an insight of the terrible madness that is sweeping through this part of the world.

Yesterday and today again we have fighting and destruction within 50 miles of us and the Germans are laying mines regardless of who may suffer or be destroyed. We must run these dangerous gamblers to reach England which is our only salvation for escape as soon as all of the open channels will be filled with floating mines and then we must remain possibly until Christmas or later. I did not know until today, 26th, that President Wilson's wife had died, or that the Pope was no more. We had no means of knowing anything.

I trust I may see you before the hectic days then and perhaps some fall by the force of the frost and I do sincerely hope I may have a lobster a la "Hain" before the war is over.

Be assured of our best wishes to Mrs. L. and yourself in which my Kelp, the Johns, and if you see the Baptists tell of our experience. Thus here are undesirable, but just as poor and poorer worse so possibly it will mean labor for you to decipher this, but a little work you'll hurt yes. God bless the Leckey and the Lord love us all.

Sincerely,

head, near the frontier, a thousands of men marching into the city from the fields, where they had been gathering their harvest, all accompanied by their wives, little children and babes in arms, filling the air with distressing sob, which was heart rendering and they clinging to those that would soon be torn away from them. Many of whom would probably never return.

Thousands of things have transpired so appropiate to our everyday life and experience, but the horrors are so deeply stamped upon my memory that I hardly know where to begin or what to picture first in my attempt in giving you an insight of the terrible madness that is sweeping through this part of the world.

Yesterday and today again we have fighting and destruction within 50 miles of us and the Germans are laying mines regardless of who may suffer or be destroyed. We must run these dangerous gamblers to reach England which is our only salvation for escape as soon as all of the open channels will be filled with floating mines and then we must remain possibly until Christmas or later. I did not know until today, 26th, that President Wilson's wife had died, or that the Pope was no more. We had no means of knowing anything.

I trust I may see you before the hectic days then and perhaps some fall by the force of the frost and I do sincerely hope I may have a lobster a la "Hain" before the war is over.

Be assured of our best wishes to Mrs. L. and yourself in which my Kelp, the Johns, and if you see the Baptists tell of our experience. Thus here are undesirable, but just as poor and poorer worse so possibly it will mean labor for you to decipher this, but a little work you'll hurt yes. God bless the Leckey and the Lord love us all.

Sincerely,
JEFF MILLER.

RUSSIANS HOLD LINE TO VIENNA

Pushing Austrians Back With Terrible Loss--Germans Making a Stubborn Resistance.

Petersburg, Russia, Sept. 4.—The Russian army is today fighting along an entirely new battle line, in Russian Poland, where the Austrian left wing has been heavily re-enforced by the Germans, the fighting in the most serious character. The Russians are holding their lines, content to remain on the defensive until the additional re-enforcements now being sent forward from the concentration district, Vilna-Grodno-Brest-Litovsk, arrive.

To the south in Austria, however, the situation is much different. There the Russians are on the offensive, and the Austrians have been pushed back toward the San river. They are holding their advanced lines and are concentrating on Przemyśl, where another great battle is certain.

The advance of the Russians through Galicia is declared to be extremely rapid. The Cossacks are sweeping the country in front of the infantry, falling back whenever strong positions are located.

To the activity of the Russian cavalry much of the present success is due. It has deliberately violated the rules of safety in charging entrenched Austrian positions, but by doing so has terrorized the enemy, the official reports say, and as the result the opposition has lost much of its forcefulness.

General Situation Excellent
The general staff issued a statement today reviewing the general situation, which was everywhere characterized as excellent. It is stated that the operations in east Prussia are being forced, although the Germans are now present on the Russian advanced lines in great force. It is believed the German artillery has so far proved superior to the Russian

THE RUSSIAN ARMY IS NOW IN FRANCE

London, Aug. 27. (By mail).—Reports have reached London from Liverpool that England has placed more than 80,000 Russian troops in France by means of transports sent north of the Scandinavian peninsula in Finland, where the Cossacks embarked.

Decisions of the allies in the Baltic and North seas and the presence of the German fleet, it had been regarded as impossible for Russia to reach France except by marching through Germany.

A constant stream of empty ships has been moving south from Liverpool ever since the declaration of war but there had been no observation of ships northward bound, and the rumor that England had helped Russians into France has given rise to much speculation as to where the ships sailed from.

However, the secrecy which surrounded the movement of the expeditionary army was so complete that the public is willing to believe the English government has it within its power to conceal any movement.

Stories told by passengers on the Mauretania, which reached New York yesterday, to the effect that Russia and England have played a trump card in getting the Czar's soldiers into France, are borne out by at least one press dispatch. By these reports it would appear that Germany has been outwitted in the greatest strategic move of the war, and that the allied forces are being strengthened by Russian troops variously estimated from 40,000 to 75,000.

Samuel J. Elder of Boston, a well known lawyer, and C. C. Willey of Chicago, a lumber merchant, are chief among those on the Mauretania who tell of the troop movements.

Mr. Elder said all trains into London from Scotland had been bringing Russians from Aberdeen, Scotland. He estimated the number at 72,000, and said they were being sent on transports to Ostend.

Mr. Willey insisted that he had seen Russian troops pass through London en route to the continent. Willey variously estimated the number of Russian troops he saw at from 65,000 to 75,000. He said the report was that the Russians had embarked at Archangel in the White sea, that they had been transported to Leth in the Firth of Forth, near Edinburgh, and after passing through London had been joined by 2000 British marines, en route to the continent to reinforce the hard pressed allies.

The New York Herald, in a copy-righted dispatch from Amsterdam, sent by arrangement with the London Express, says today that Holland also has heard of the movement of Russian troops through England.

Armies More Like Checkers
Giving the various reports their face value, it is evident that the greatest war game in history is being played in Europe. Armies are being moved about like men on a checker board. Who the winner will be depends on the moves now being made.

Fresh troops are being poured into the war zone by England from her colonies. They are en route from Canada, New Zealand and Australia. Forty thousand men are on their way to France from England alone.

One of the greatest moves now under way is the sending of Russian troops to France through England. As England and Russia control the northern coast thousands of men are being rushed without danger from Russia by transports. Just how many men are on their way to help the allies is not known, but it is believed that the number is large.

From Archangel, the point in Russia where the troops are embarking to Havre, France, is a distance of 2510 miles. As the Kaiser's fleet is bottled up by the British the Russian transports can move in safety.

Russia has millions of men whom she can throw into the breach, and when these re-enforcements arrive, it is the belief of military experts that the fighting will be more bloody than ever and that the Germans will find the going not so smooth.

Trains and Transports Busy
It is reported that 30 troop trains

George S. Chandler, 420 Pleasant street Portsmouth, says: "I do a great deal of walking in my work, and in that way my kidneys became weakened, causing me much suffering. About three years ago I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills and began using them. They cured me and I have had little trouble since. Sometimes when I overwork or do any heavy lifting, I notice lameness in my back, but a few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills bring relief. I have recommended this remedy to many of my friends and in every instance where it has been tried, benefit has followed."

Splitdorf Ford Special Waterproof High-Tension Magneto
FORD POWER POSSIBILITIES

It is known as the Splitdorf Ford Special High-Tension Magneto and is exactly what its name implies—a high tension magneto of special construction to meet the special demands of Ford cars. In natty appearance, in waterproof construction and in wonderful effectiveness it is in the highest class. With its noiseless, enclosed gear driven installation on a Ford (no chains or open gears) the nuisance and expense of vibrators, coils and batteries pass into the discard and a high tension system of ignition secured that is second to none.

OPENED SEASON WITH A FINE ATTRACTION

"The Mischief Maker" was the title of a delightful comedy drama, which Manager Hartford presented for an opening attraction for the season, and a good audience enjoyed a very pleasant evening.

The comedy drama, and it is rightly named, for there is some real drama, and a great deal of good comedy, has been playing in New York and other big town stands, but this is the first season on the road. It is very finely staged and presented by a most capable company, and there is not a show spot in the entire three acts.

Harford Lavett as Jack Craigton was in the lead, and he is justly entitled to the place. A clever actor with a fine personality, Evelyn Watson as Helen Steele, who played a part, was very fine, an artist with considerable dramatic ability and pretty.

Alfred Hilton as "Honey" the escaped convict, had a part which is not often presented on the stage, but he certainly got away with it. He handled the part so that all times it was funny without being distasteful. A funny act is putting in a lot of fun. All of the company are clever and leaving nothing lacking in their characters.

The cast:
Jack Craigton Harford Lavett
John Craigton Thomas Harris
Henry Tracy Norman Wendell
Shirley Parker William Currier
Stephen Weatherly
Thaddeus Wilbur
John Hill
All Hilton
John Hill
Harry Williams
Arthur Lench
Hert Campbell
Evelyn Watson
William Denison
Nora Sprague
Act 1—Interior Country Home of John Craigton on the Hudson
Act 2—Jack Craigton's Bungalow in the Adirondacks Act 3—Same as Act 2.

DEMANDS OF THE PLUMBERS AND FITTERS

The following are the demands made by the Plumbers and Steamfitters at Concord who are at present on a strike:

Article I.—The hours of labor shall be from 8.00 a. m. to 12.00 m., and from 1 p. m. to 5 p. m., except Saturdays which will be 8.00 a. m. to 12 m.

Article II.—All over time shall be paid at the rate of double time including Saturdays and holidays.

Article III.—Traveling expenses, board and lodging shall be paid when men are required to work out of town, and within a reasonable distance they shall be allowed to come home once a week at the firm's expense on their own time.

Article IV.—No journeyman plumber or steamfitter shall work in any shop more than twenty-four hours unless he is a member of the United Association of Journeymen Plumbers, Gas Fitters, Steam Fitters of the U. S. and Canada.

Article V.—No member of the United Association will be allowed to sub-contract or lumping for master plumber or master steam fitter, or work for any person who has taken such contracts. No master plumber shall sub contract to any journeyman.

Article VI.—No member of the United Association shall be permitted to furnish a gasoline or oil furnace or any pipe cutting or threading tools.

Article VII.—Any journeyman plumber or steamfitter sent out of town or city limits including Penacook, before or after the hours specified shall be paid at the rate of double time.

Article VIII.—One apprentice will be allowed to each shop. Said apprentice shall be furnished an apprenticeship card by this local union, No. 213.

Article IX.—Weekly payments shall be made Saturdays at 12.00 m.

Article X.—The wage scale shall be plumbers and steam fitters four dollars per day. Apprentices will be allowed six months after getting a license to get the minimum rate of wages.

RETURNS STILL INCOMPLETE

Candidate Noone, According to Unofficial Figures, Leads by Two Votes.

The winner of the democratic nomination for governor of New Hampshire is still unsettled. According to returns from all but seven towns and one ward of the state, which have been verified from tally sheets of the town and ward clerks, and which have been forwarded to Concord, John C. Hutchins of Stratford has 5249 votes to 5227
for Albert W. Noone.

Unofficial returns have been received from the eight missing towns, which give Noone a lead of two votes, with the vote reading: Noone, 5356; Hutchins, 5354.

Of the eight towns for which returns have not been forwarded to Concord, two have been verified by telephone communications with the clerk of Ward 4, Dover, who gave the vote as 39 to 26 in favor of Noone and with the clerk of Westmoreland, who gave the vote there as Noone, 5; Hutchins, 2.

The other towns that are reckoned in the total giving Noone the lead of two votes are:

	Hutchins	Noone
Litchfield	1	4
Barlett	21	7
Newport	148	40
Seabrook	6	32

These with Dover ward and Westmoreland furnish totals of 104 for Hutchins and 129 for Noone to add to the official returns sent to Concord.

The complete tally, including official and unofficial returns, give each candidate five counties. The vote by counties is:

	Hutchins	Noone
Rockingham	523	518
Stratford	815	301
Bellamy	254	151
Carroll	203	145
Merrimack	716	924

THE HERALD HEARS

That a Concord paper of Friday has it that Noone and Hutchins are tie in the primary vote for governor nomination.

That Jack Coombs, the famous pitcher of the Philadelphia baseball club is running for senator on the Progressive ticket in York county, Me.

That he made his first political speech at Saco a few nights ago.

That the crowd was pleased with his address.

That the highway on Noble's Island between the bridges is a disgrace to the city.

That automobiles are held up there every day by injury from the rough road.

That old Puddle Dock never had anything on it after a rain.

That automobile owners are saying a lot of nice things about the town owing to the conditions existing there.

That Mayor Yeaton in his inaugural address spoke strongly for the repair of this highway, but it doesn't seem to come.

That a dozen or more cases of typhoid fever are reported at York Harbor.

That 164 families are said to have left that place within the past few days.

That Portsmouth has two good ringers for President Wilson.

That two well known young ladies are making a study of the German language.

That their friends are asking if they are to take up nursing in the European war.

That the boys say Dan Cupid will lead them to the altar in New York.

That city hall appears to be full of baseball fans this summer.

That the fact that all loose paper must be tied up for collection is meeting the approval of the majority of the people.

That everybody should be willing to help keep the city clean.

EUREKA WHIST CLUB.

Entertained by Mrs. Arthur T.
Smith at New Castle.

Mrs. Arthur T. Smith of Islington street on Friday entertained the Eureka Whist Club at the cottage of her son, Leon Smith at New Castle.

The trip to and from New Castle was made in Mr. Smith's motor boat. At noon a luncheon was served consisting of baked beans, brown bread, rois, cold meats, salads, pies, cake,
and coffee. In the afternoon bathing was enjoyed and whist was indulged in. Prizes were awarded to Mrs.
Fred Lindsey and Mrs. David White.

The meeting was one of the most delightful the Eureka has had this summer.
